The globe is semi-transparent, showing the continents in a light grey color. The background is a solid light grey. The overall composition is clean and professional.

Simplify Your Global Business Expansion

Achieve employment compliance across 50+ markets
Without establishing a local legal entity

Managing an emerging workforce is one of the key challenges of international business expansion, and it is more critical without a local entity set up in that particular country. The new normal has also resulted in businesses changing hiring practices and reducing costs where possible, posing a hindrance to international expansion opportunities. However, this doesn't mean that companies have to put a halt to their international expansion plans despite it being a daunting process.

Even without establishing a legal entity, a Global Employer of Record (EOR) is able to elevate your go-to-market strategy by making it more robust and efficient to drive seamless international expansion.

What is a Global Employer of Record?

Global Employer of Record (EOR), also known as Professional Employer Organisation (PEO), is a joint employment relationship with an employer by leasing employees to the employer. By partnering with TG as your Global EOR, we take on your human capital management function to make employee leasing a seamless process for you while ensuring compliance to the local labour law legislations.

Why Partner with a Global EOR?

Global EOR services are perfect for businesses that seek to enjoy a robust yet cost-efficient go-to-market strategy, in order to accelerate and simplify their global expansion into other countries around the world during this post-pandemic period. We will take care of payroll, benefits, HR, tax administration and regulatory compliance of your employees.

While Global EOR aims to provide a seamless market expansion, businesses can also engage a Global EOR to provide recruitment and staffing services to provide critical support in accelerating growth.
